When life takes a bad turn, we're here to defend.

David Costa's devotion to advance the community's best interests in court has made him a repeat winner as our favourite lawyer.

His humble father Avelino, from mainland Portugal, instilled a strong work ethic. David's mother Armelina, from the Azorean island of Teixeira, introduced social awareness and practical sensibility.

With degrees in music and education from the University of Toronto, and further accolades from the Royal Conservatory of Music, David's diverse background groomed him to teach World Issues and both American and Canadian history. This led to his interest in law, resulting with David acquiring law degrees from BOTH countries!

David has developed a full-service law practice in the heart of our Portuguese community, on Toronto's main Bloor Street West artery. His team of skilled and experienced lawyers and staff address all legal areas ranging from corporate and immigration to estates, personal injury and family.

David focuses his personal energy on defending the wrongly accused and those otherwise struggling through the criminal justice system. His insight in helping those overcome tragic inner and social conflict remain a key reason people in crisis choose David to defend their causes, great and small.
